Jim Fregosi

On The Field

Jim Fregosi and his coaching team.

Jim Fregosi was named manager of the Phillies on April 23, 1991, replacing Nick Leyva. This will be his fifth season as Phillies skipper, longest for a Phillies manager since Danny Ozark's seven years at the helm from 1973-1979.

He added first base coach Mel Roberts in 1992 to a fine coaching crew...and the group has remained together since then.

In keeping with the Silver Season of Veterans Stadium theme, these seven gentlemen shared their unique perspectives and memories of their Vet experiences.

Manager Jim Fregosi

"The first thing I recall about The Vet was that 13-game win streak in 1991...my first year managing in Philadelphia.

"The strangest or funniest was Father's Day...remember that picture on PhanaVision of me holding a baby with Kruk's head on it?

"The greatest, without a doubt, was when Mitch Williams struck out Bill Pecota to win the playoffs in 1993."

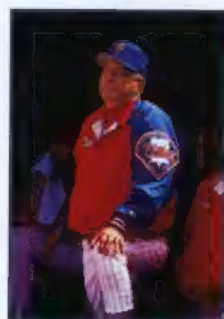

Third Base Coach Larry Bowa

"I remember the first game vs. Montreal. It was a new stadium...astroturf...we were a young team...and I got the first hit. I remember that more than anything.

"My worst memory of The Vet was the last game of the playoffs vs. LA in 1977. I can't believe we played. It was rainy, conditions were horrible. We must have played just for TV. I thought Chub Feeney (NL President) would postpone the game, but all he said was, 'It's not raining.'

"The greatest moment at The Vet was Game 6 of the World Series. Everyone knew we would win before we went out. We were destined to win. Carlton was pitching...It was fate, we fell short so many times before then."

Pitching Coach Johnny Podres

"There were many strange things that happened at The Vet. I remember when we clinched third place in 1991... Terry Mulholland defeated the Mets, 1-0...Then the next game, David Cone struck out 19...That was Doug Lindsey's first game in the majors and he had to face Cone...He struck out four times.

"You know, those dugouts are too close here. I almost got killed. There was a foul ball one time... I couldn't move. It hit between Steve Lake and myself...Just missed my head.

"One of the greatest times was when we won 13 straight in 1991...All those people coming out to see the games, that's what it's all about."

Hitting Instructor Denis Menke

"My first memory of The Vet was all those rainouts my first year coaching here. I remember thinking at the time, this is going to be a long year.

"The strangest thing I've ever experienced was walking OUT of the ballpark at 6:00 am after that doubleheader with the Padres in July, 1993 (game ended at 4:40 am).

"My greatest experience was the 1993 playoffs. I think what I remember best was Mickey Morandini hitting that line drive off Greg Maddux...to me that turned the whole game around."

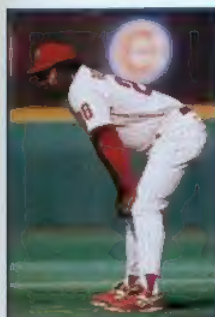

Bullpen Coach Mike Ryan

"The first thing I remember was catching that ball in the opener. I had 55,000 people watching me try to catch a ball dropped from a helicopter... I had to catch it, and that, I did.

"The strangest thing I recall was the game against San Diego that started at 1:30 am (July 3, 1993).

"My greatest memory is a toss-up...the 1980 team winning and 1993."

First Base Coach Mel Roberts

"Opening Day in 1992 was my first and fondest memory of The Vet. It was my first day in the big leagues and it was a thrill being introduced for the first time.

"One of the craziest things I've done at The Vet was my trivia contests with Gregg

Jefferies at first base when he was with St. Louis. We'd play along with the scoreboard trivia games. I'm not going to tell you the outcome, but he's very good.

"The greatest memory at The Vet was simply winning the NL Pennant."

Dugout Coach John Vukovich

"My first memory of The Vet was driving by it the November before it opened. I drove right down Broad Street. It was exciting...especially after playing at Connie Mack Stadium at the end there.

"My worst memory was not winning the fifth game of the 1981 playoffs against Montreal. That was a let down.

"Willie Wilson striking out in Game 6 of the 1980 World Series was the greatest moment ever...we finally won it all."

Looking Back At The Vet

"In fact, it is a beautiful place."

So wrote Roy Blount Jr., in a SPORTS ILLUSTRATED article about the opening game at Veterans Stadium, April 10, 1971.

As early as 1953, city officials plus the Phillies and Eagles began discussions for a new multi-purpose sports stadium. After years of hassles over the site, size, design, funding and name, groundbreaking ceremonies were finally held on October 2, 1967.

The Phillies and Montreal Expos, who closed Connie Mack Stadium the previous October, were the opponents on a chilly Saturday afternoon, 24 years ago. Final score: Phillies 4, Expos 1. Jim Bunning, the oldest starting pitcher in the majors at age 39, was the winner, his 220th lifetime victory.

A crowd of 55,352 fans packed the place. Last summer, the 50 millionth fan passed through the gates.

Since that first game, the place has changed physically. Scoreboards in left-center and right-center were removed to add more seating; an $80,000 home run spectacular mounted on the fourth level facade in center field which featured Colonial-dressed Philadelphia Phil and Phyllis departed, as did the dancing waters beyond the center field wall; an electronic scoreboard and video board were added; more Super Boxes were built and Sky Boxes were constructed at the top of the stadium for the Eagles.

In recent years, the Phillies and City of Philadelphia have spent more than $30 million to make sure the stadium continues to be a first-class facility. Prior to this season, a fifth-generation artificial turf was installed. The earth-tone colored seats are being phased out and replaced by all blue seats with the upper level first on the agenda. ■

VETERANS STADIUM FACTS—1971

Capacity: 56,371, largest in the National League

Shape: An octorad, not a circle. "Octo is Latin for the numeral eight. Rad is short for radius. There are eight points of radius on my circle. Connect them with straight lines, or chords, and you have the shape of the stadium," explained architect Ron Knabb.

Concrete: 87,000 cubic yards

Steel: 7,600 tons of reinforced steel and 1,440 tons of structural steel

Playing Surface: AstroTurf covering 146,000 square feet

Height: From ground level, 160 feet

Diameter: 840 feet

Parking: Spaces for 12,000 cars

Escalators: 13

Ramps: Two miles of ramps

Rest Rooms: 62

Concession Stands: 60

Scoreboard: $3 million animated system operated by a computer; most expensive ever installed. Each board (one in left-center and one in right-center) measured 25'x 100' and weighed 66 tons. 19,292 light bulbs displayed animated cartoons, player photos, statistics and commercials. Both boards were on hydraulic lifts and were lowered into concrete pits for football games.

Sound-system Speakers: 450

Lighting Fixtures: 12,000

Final Cost: Excess of $52,000,000.

Memories Of The First Game by Chris Wheeler

There is nothing quite so relentless as the inevitable passage of time as we helplessly watch the years go by.

But, can it be that we have seen 24 baseball seasons at the huge octorad called "The Vet" at Broad and Pattison pass from spring through fall?

The sentiment around baseball in the '90s seems to be a return to those idyllic days when the game was played in small grass and dirt ballparks in the middle of the large urban areas that helped spawn the game's immense popularity.

As those inner city areas began to decay, the rage became the huge multi-purpose Stadia that could house both a town's baseball and football franchise in grand style.

Yes, we were entering an era of splendor where big was better and the City of Philadelphia adhered to the requests of its baseball and football franchises and built the brightest and best of the multi-purpose facilities.

Since many of us have short memories and are prone to revise history, I remember there was a tremendous sense of excitement leading up to the Phillies home opener on Saturday afternoon, April 10, 1971 at 2:15 P.M.

This sparkling jewel in South Philadelphia was a source of civic pride, a magnificent new, 54 million dollar project that was the biggest and the best and it was all ours

Opening Day dawned cloudy and cold. A chilly wind from the Northeast had replaced the almost summerlike temperatures of the day before when the Phillies and Expos had worked out for the first time at the new facility.

In April, 1971, I was living at the Glenhardie Apartments in the King of Prussia area and was working at the nearby General Electric Space Center in Valley Forge in the News Bureau. I'd recently been laid off in yet another CBS cutback and had sent resumes to all the sports teams in Philadelphia telling them how smart they'd be to hire me!

However, this April Saturday was a day to just hop in the car, jump on the Schuylkill and be a part of history. And I remember being very excited, the way I always was when I was going to a ballgame, but this day was going to be special.

I think one of the greatest thrills of going to a game at Connie Mack Stadium was the feeling of walking though one of the entrances and seeing that magnificent field in front of you. It was a breathtaking sight and I never tired of it.

So, I wondered what it would be like entering this huge new ballpark, especially since the grass had been replaced, in the new wave of Stadia around the country, by a plastic surface called "AstroTurf."

My ticket, a box seat priced at $4.25, said to enter Gate A. So up the ramp I went into the Stadium. I followed the signs to section 213 and strode boldly out of the darkness of the concourse to the brilliant sight of the multi-colored seats, the huge scoreboards, and yes, the brilliant green turf.

The first ball was dropped from a helicopter, there was a lot of pomp and ceremony and as a fan who always wanted to be a broadcaster, I remember being very impressed by the young guy on the field doing the pre-game show. He was some new announcer named Harry Kalas, who would debut that afternoon as a Phillies play-by-play announcer.

Jim Bunning threw the first pitch and Boots Day tapped it right back to him. Later on, Larry Bowa got the first hit and Don Money hit The Vet's first home run.

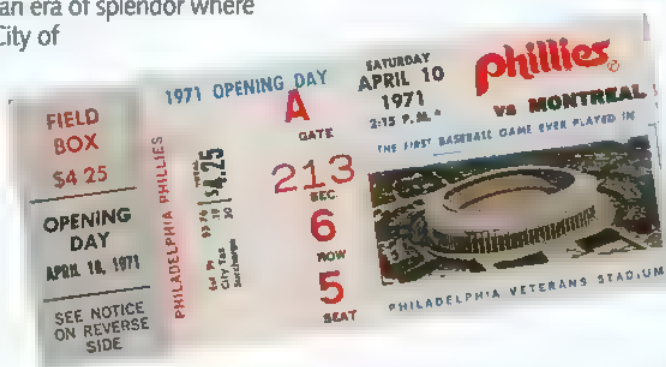

The crowd was 55,352 and Bunning beat Bill Stoneman, 4-1, with Joe Hoerner picking up a save.

It was a great day and as I filed out of the stadium for the first time, I remember thinking how I planned to be back many times to watch my favorite team in their brilliant new ballpark.

Little did I know that several weeks later, Phillies Publicity Director Larry Shenk would pull my resume and I'd soon be starting the adventure that would now total 24 wonderful years as an employee of one of the best organizations in all of sports.

April 10, 1971, Opening Day at The Vet, and I was there as a paying customer for the start of a new era in Philadelphia sports.

And no matter what its detractors might say, The Vet was a first-class show that cold April afternoon. One All-Star Game, six League Championship Series and three World Series later, the big building at the corner of Broad and Pattison remains one tremendous ballpark, and a true source of pride for our great city. ■

July 11, 1B Deron Johnson hit three home runs (#19-20-21) in 11-5 win over Montreal, his fourth consecutive home run as he homered in final at bat of the second game the previous night

August 1- St. Louis scored three in the top of the 12th when the rains came. The Zamboni machine, used to vacuum the water from the playing surface, broke down. Cardinals filed a protest and NL ruled a 3-3 suspended game to be completed prior to regular game on September 7. When game resumed, Phillies scored three in their 12th to tie before St. Louis won in 13, 9-6

September 18: RHP Rick Wise gave up a second-inning home run to Chicago C Frank Fernandez, staking the Cubs to a 3-0 lead. The Phillies eventually tied the game in the eighth, 3-3. Wise meanwhile, retired 32 consecutive batters after Fernandez' homer until 3B Ron Santo singled with two out in the 12th. The Phillies won the game, 4-3, on Wise's bases-loaded single in the 12th

June 10: Another great moment in Vet history 1B Pete Rose needed two hits to surpass Stan Musial as the all-time NL hit leader. Rose singled in his first at bat against Houston RHP Nolan Ryan, who then struck out Pete the next three at bats. Phils won 5-4, before 57,386.

August 10. First game back from the strike, which saw the Phillies miss 55 games. Rose broke Musial's record with an eighth-inning ground ball single to left field off St. Louis RHP Mark Littell. St. Louis won the game, 7-3 before 60,651. Because so many games were missed, Major League Baseball decided to have a split season. Since the Phillies were one and a half-games ahead of the Cardinals on June 11, the Phillies were declared first-half champions of the NL East.

April 29. LHP Steve Carlton went into the game with Montreal needing three strikeouts to reach 3,000. It turned into one of the most memorable moments in Vet history. Lefty took just four minutes to strike out the side in the first inning, LF Tim Lincecum, 2B Jerry Manuel and 1B Tim Wallach. Final score Phillies 6, Montreal 2.

July 2 One of the Vet classics. Two-night double header with San Diego featured three rain delays totaling 5:54. LHP Mitch Williams' 10th inning single in the second game gave the Phillies a 6-5 win and split Williams hit came at 4:40 a.m. 12 hours and five minutes after the first game started.

July 7 Another classic. Los Angeles scored twice in the ninth to send the game into extra innings. It all ended with CF Lenny Dykstra's two-run double in the bottom of the 20th inning, a 7-6 win. It matched the longest game in Vet history.

October 13 Phillies won the NL pennant with third straight win over Atlanta, a 6-3 decision. LHP Mitch Williams struck out PH Bill Pecota to end the game and start the celebration.

October 20 One of the wildest games in World Series history saw Toronto score six times in the eighth for a 15-14 win over coming two homers by CF Lenny Dykstra and five RBIs by LF Milt Thompson. It was the longest game in World Series history, 4:14.

In honor of this, the 25th season at Veterans Stadium, the six Phillies broadcasters took a moment to reminisce about their first, greatest and strangest memories of "The Vet."

First Memories

Harry Kalas was the emcee of the field ceremonies for the stadium opener. "I remember Jim Fanning (Montreal's general manager) being brought in on a dogsled. But I'll never forget my big mistake that day. I was in charge of introducing this long list of dignitaries ... and I skipped the National League President, Chub Feeney. I couldn't believe I did that. I apologized profusely to him afterwards. He said he didn't mind, and the apology was accepted ... but I'll never forget it."

Harry Kalas and Richie Ashburn

Richie Ashburn, Andy Musser and Chris Wheeler were also at the Veterans Stadium opener, but all in different capacities.

Ashburn recalled it as being "the first of many great years working with Harry." Wheeler was there as a fan and simply enjoyed "the game itself." Andy Musser was working for Channel 10 and recalled "all the pageantry of Opening Day ... and the tragedy in the right field area. I believe there was an area there that was roped off because it wasn't completed yet and some fans fell through it ... And, the Phillies won!"

Chris Wheeler

Kent Tekulve had a completely different perspective for his first Vet memory. He was playing for Sherbrooke of the Eastern League in 1973. "We were supposed to play in Reading, but the ballpark was flooded, so we played at the Vet. I remember the enormous size of the stadium and that some of the 200 fans actually thought the Phillies were playing the Pirates. I also remember it was my first time on turf, and thinking how hard an astroturf field was."

Kent Tekulve and Andy Musser

Todd Kalas was five years old when The Vet opened. "I remember those Quaker characters, one of them came down and shot off cannons. The other thing that sticks in my mind were the seats. I came from the Astrodome and the seats there had springs, so when I got to The Vet I noticed the seats were either up or down. They didn't spring back, so I couldn't play with them and had to watch more of the game."

Greatest Memories

Harry, Richie, Wheels and Todd each agreed, as do many fans, that the greatest moment in Vet history was in 1980, when the Phillies finally won their first World Championship.

Andy didn't quite agree. "The World Series was great, but you have to remember, we weren't allowed to broadcast it in those days. My favorite memory was Terry Mulholland's no-hitter. So much was riding on each pitch. There was so much electricity in the air. We put more into every pitch than in any other game."

Teke's greatest memory of The Vet personifies Philadelphia. "It was my first game as a Phillie and the fans gave me a standing ovation as I entered the game. All this after being booed EVERY time I came into a game as a Pirate pitcher."

Strangest Memories

Teke's strangest memory of The Vet dates back to 1986. "It had to be all the excitement in the stadium when we held off the Mets from clinching the NL East title during a weekend series ... We were 20 games behind and in second place, and the fans were going crazy."

Andy's strangest memory was one no one will soon forget. "Looking at my watch for the start of the second game of the doubleheader with San Diego on July 3, 1993. It was almost 1:30 AM ... I just couldn't believe we were going to start that second game so late."

Wheels recalled that entire week in 1993. "It was the homestand from hell. PRISM aired every inning of those long games (doubleheader, July 2; 20-inning game, July 7). I had to do all the play-by-play; it was just me and Jay (Johnstone) ... And it was so hot and humid that week; I think it was 90 degrees. What a long homestand that was."

The Phillies were renown for their promotions, particularly in the early years of the Vet ... and they have had quite a few doozies.

Harry recalled Karl Walenda's high wire act on August 7, 1972. "We were going to carry it live on TV. Prior to going up, I remember his family telling him not to do it. The wire was weaving up there in the wind ... he had some ushers trying to hold it still, but they weren't experienced at it; they were just holding it like they would a dog on a leash. And I had to broadcast it LIVE ... that was a hairy situation." (He did cross successfully.)

"I remember that ostrich race," recalled Richie. "They kept attacking me!"

Todd remembered the World's Highest Jumping Easter Bunny promotion. "For weeks the Phillies were promoting this event. A person, dressed as a bunny, was supposed to get in a hot air balloon at the Vet and the first person to touch him when he came down would win all kinds of prizes. Well, the day came and there were swirling winds at the stadium ... They couldn't get the balloon more than five feet off the ground. It was the funniest thing I've ever seen." ■

Welcome To The Show!

Thousands of baseball games have been played at The Vet, but a trip there is more than just a contest between two teams. Granted, the game is the main attraction, but a game at The Vet is a total entertainment package for everyone in the family.

Fans, young and old, have been treated to an All-Star promotional lineup every season. Caps, batting gloves, t-shirts, sweatshirts, tote bags, equipment bags, photo cards and posters are just a few of the giveaway items fans have received from the Phillies.

In addition, there have been breathtaking circus acts, big-time entertainers, Kiteman I, II, III, and IV, and some ideas that bombed, such as an ostrich race and the world's highest-jumping Easter bunny.

Richie Ashburn, Steve Carlton and Mike Schmidt have had their uniform numbers retired in emotional pregame ceremonies.

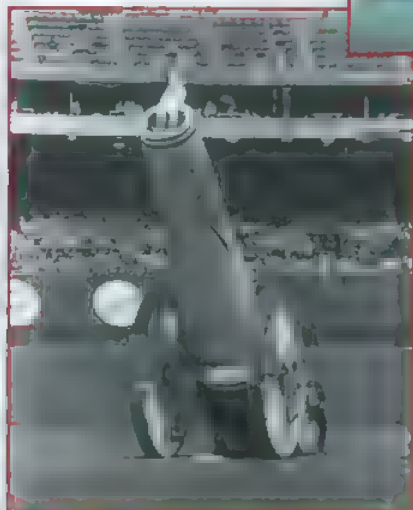

Phil and Phyllis were mascots in the early years before being replaced in 1978 by a big, green, furry thing called Phillie Phanatic. A baseball game at the Vet wouldn't seem the same without the Phanatic, baseball's most lovable mascot.

A formula of baseball, promotions and an attractive stadium has produced an average of 2.1 million fans per season through the first 24 years of The Vet.

Kiteman delivered the first ball in 1972, 1973, 1980 and 1990 prior to a return encore this season.

Starship III, a helicopter act in which Dave Merrifield dangled from a trapeze suspended under the helicopter, delivered the first ball in 1985.

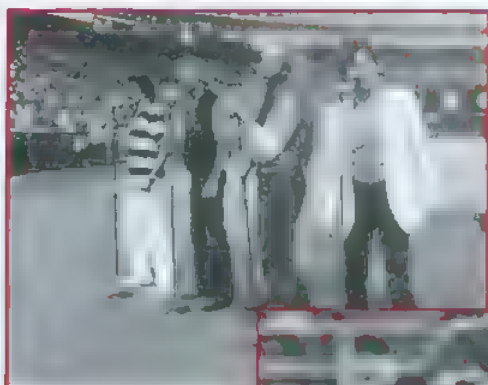

Cannon-Man made appearances in 1974 and 1984.

In keeping with the first ball tradition, the Wondrous Winns were on hand in 1986. With the husband riding a motor cycle on a high wire, his wife performed on a trapeze under the motorcycle.

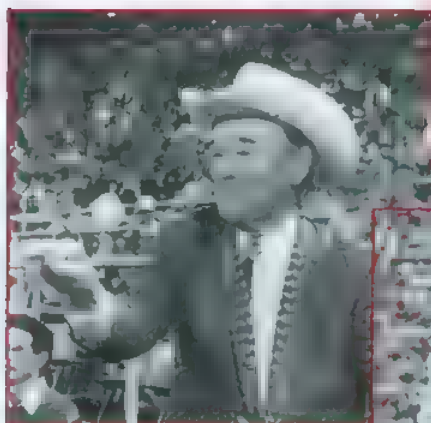

...And The Show Continues!

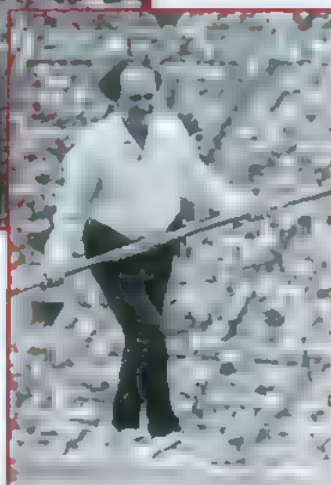

Anthem singers over the years have included the Oak Ridge Boys, Pat Benatar and Debby Boone

Philie Phanatic has been involved in everything, including supervising a Cash Scramble between games of a double header, escorting winners of a trip to Fort Lauderdale on Instant Vacation Night, riding a trapeze under a motorcycle at one of his Birthday Parties and toying with Colorado Rockies coach, Don Zimmer

Celebrities by the hundreds have thrown out the first ball including the fabled Roy Rogers in 1983

Perhaps the greatest of all nerve-racking events were the performances of the great Karl Wallenda in 1972 and 1976. He walked 600 feet across a high wire suspended 160 feet above the field

Cooperstown Festival

In 1994, Steve Carlton was inducted into Baseball's Hall of Fame. In July of this season, two more Phillies legends will enter the hallowed hall.

The Agrobacterium strains were incubated in the presence of 100 mg/ml of gentamicin and 100 mg/ml of rifampicin. The concentration of the Agrobacterium suspension was 10⁶ cells/ml. The transformation efficiency was determined by the number of transformants per 10⁶ cells. The data are the mean \pm SD of three independent experiments.

Phillie Phanatic

It was created out of one of the weekly staff meetings of the Phillies marketing department after the 1977 season. It was named after the fanatical Phillies fans.

The original person in the costume was David Raymond, a graduate of Newark (DE) High School and the University of Delaware (1979), BA degree in physical education. In his 17 years, Raymond missed just eight games.

Tom Burgoyne, the "new" Phanatic, actually began his fanatical career as Raymond's back-up in 1989. He additionally joined the Phillies promotional staff in 1990. The 28-year old and is a graduate of St. Joseph's Preparatory School and Drexel University (1988), where he earned a BS degree in Marketing.

RED BARONS
The Scranton/Wilkes-Barre Red Barons have a big season in store in 1995. They will play host to the 1995 Triple A All-Star Game on July 12. A special logo has been designed and plenty of entertainment arranged for the event. In addition to fireworks, the Phillie Phanatic and Sport (Dave Raymond's new character), the Red Barons have arranged for the Sports Magic Bleacher Brigade to be on hand. The game begins at 8:05 p.m. at Lackawanna Stadium on July 12. For tickets call (717) 969-BALL.

Prior to the All Star festivities, the 1995 Phillies will play an exhibition game against the Red Barons at Lackawanna County Stadium on May 22 at 6:00 p.m.

The Reading Phillies and General Manager Chuck Domino received national recognition in December when they were awarded the 1994 Larry McPhail Trophy. The trophy, given to the top promoter at the minor league level, was awarded by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (NAPBL). The 216-member NAPBL had never presented the award to an Eastern League executive and organization since the award's inception in 1966.

Domino and the Reading staff used 62 (all of which were sponsored) out of 71 possible dates to attract fans to Reading Municipal Stadium. As a result, for the seventh consecutive season Reading set an organization attendance mark. Their attendance of 338,228 in 1994 was the second highest in the league's history and allowed Reading to become one of only two teams in the league's 72-year history to surpass 300,000 in consecutive years.

In 1994, the Clearwater Phillies created the Hard Ball Cafe in the right field stands at Jack Russell Memorial Stadium. The Cafe features concession facilities, a picnic area with cafe tables and umbrellas, plus, an all-you-can-eat menu of ballpark favorites. Over 4,000 fans experienced the exclusivity and comfortable surroundings of the Hard Ball Cafe in its inaugural year, making it the ideal group outing for organizations of all sizes.

The Piedmont Phillies are celebrating their Inaugural Season in 1995. The new Phillies affiliate, formerly in Spartanburg, will continue to play in the South Atlantic League. The Piedmont team will only be known as the Phillies for the 1995 season, as the team held a "Name the Team" contest prior to the start of the season. No hints have been given, but the team will announce the winning name during the South Atlantic League All-Star break (June 18-20).

The Phillies are proud to announce that for the first time in franchise history all games will be televised in 1995.

WPHL-TV 17 will broadcast 73 games (17 home dates and 56 from the road) with your favorite broadcasters, Harry Kalas, Rich Ashburn, Chris Wheeler and Andy Musser.

PRISM is one of two cable networks carrying the Phillies. This year they will televise 39 home games. Wheeler and Garry Maddox will be joined again by that other Kalas, Todd, for their second year together.

SportsChannel Philadelphia, the other cable network, will air 19 Phillies games (9 home, 10 road). Musser and Kent Tekulve will begin their fourth season together in 1995.

The Baseball Network, a joint venture involving ABC, NBC and Major League Baseball, will try to improve on last year's initial success. "Baseball Night in America" will carry 12 Phillies games (6 home, 6 road), all after the All-Star break.

The remaining game will be televised by ESPN on Sunday evening, August 27, against the Los Angeles Dodgers from Veterans Stadium.

Once again, all games will be broadcast over the airwaves by WGMP 1210 AM. Harry Kalas, Ashburn, Musser and Wheeler will bring you the action over the radio.

Additionally, and continuing a tradition they began last year, WTEL 860 AM will broadcast 15 games in Spanish in 1995. Billy Berroa and Armando Talavera will bring you the action on all Sunday home day games and all Businessperson's Specials.
